DACA 10th Anniversary
End their nightmares; give them back their dreams.
Statement by Fran Eskin-Royer
Executive Director of the National Advocacy Center of the Sisters of the Good Shepherd

(Silver Spring, MD) – Children embody our hope; our dreams. And dreams embody the American spirit and opportunity. What does it say if we rip away the dreams of our children?

Ten years ago, we tried to fix a wrong. We told children who were illegally brought to America without their understanding that we would not send them away, that they could stay in the only country many of them knew; they could learn and work, grow and serve.

Most Americans want the Dreamers to stay. Now is the time for Congress to wake up and send a unifying and heart-warming message of American idealism.

These Dreamers are of all colors and shapes and come from all parts of the globe. Yet they are American. They are American in their souls, in their attitudes, aspirations and expectations. They power America with their toughness, passion, fortitude, hard work and spirit.

They need a solid, permanent foundation on which to build their lives. The National Advocacy Center honors them on the 10th anniversary of DACA and calls on Congress and President Biden to secure our social fabric that we have woven together by making DACA permanent and freeing these young people from threats and intimidation. End their nightmares; give them back their dreams.

"Rouse your heart to love, gratitude and generosity."
